The King Lost His Ring

A Reading A–Z Decodable Book • Word Count: 261
The King Lost His Ring

Written by Ned Jensen
Illustrated by Joe Hammond

www.readinga-z.com
The king of Ding Dong looked at his hand.
“Help!” he said.
“I have lost my ring!
I must have dropped it in the mud.”
The king was sad.
He could not eat a single bite of cake.
"Bring me my ring. It is the only thing that will make me sing a happy song," he said.

The king hired a gang of men to look for his ring.
"Dig up all the mud in the kingdom. You must find my ring!" said the king.

He could not eat a single bite of cake.
The king was sad.
All the people in the kingdom wanted the king to be happy. They baked him all the things he liked. But bringing these things did not make the king happy.
A robin looked down.
It saw a shape shining in a pile of mud.
It was the king’s ring.
The robin picked up the ring.
The king sang out.
“I have my ring back,” he said.
“Bang the gong and tell all the kingdom.”